

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

Yahoo! HotJobs (<http://hotjobs.yahoo.com/>)

Easy resume posting and tons of exposure makes Yahoo! Hot Jobs a no-brainer for anyone wanting to be noticed in their prospective field.

USAJobs (www.usajobs.gov)

There are a ton of government jobs out there, and here's where you'll find most of them – alas, the presidency's already taken.

TheLadders (www.theladders.com)

Sleek and refined, just as you could be if you luck out and somehow land one of TheLadders' $100,000-plus uber-positions. Apply here only if you're looking for a $100,000 year job or up – just remember us on your holiday gift list.

SnagAJob.com (www.snagajob.com)

SnagAJob may seem a bit basic when compared to the industry giants, but it's no less worthy, especially for those seeking hourly employment

SimplyHired.com (www.simplyhired.com)

Arguably today's most-recommended job search engine and aggregator site, SimplyHired.com is also one of the busiest

Monster.com (www.monster.com)

Though it isn't nearly as monstrous as it once, Monster.com is the granddaddy of job search sites and still packs a lot of weight, given its multitude of listings and prospective employers

Indeed.com (www.indeed.com)

The hugely popular, user-friendly job search engine Indeed.com is one of several aggregators (sites that collect info from other employment sites) to appear in our list, and among the popular favorites.

Dice (www.dice.com)

Heavy on the tech-oriented jobs, Dice is lauded for its sense of direction and guidance and its collection of current and up to date job opportunities

Craigslist (www.craigslist.org) Clearly not a job-specific site, popular online classified ad website Craigslist has nonetheless become a hot spot for local job listings. Beware of potential scammers, however.

CareerBuilder (www.careerbuilder.com) One of today's premier mega-sites, CareerBuilder is straightforward to use and sports oodles of resources for the earnest job seeker.

MediaBistro.com

Dedicated to helping people that create or work with content, or who is a non-creative professional working in a creative industry. It offers employment listings and recruiting for media professionals in journalism, book publishing, television, radio, public relations, graphic design, photography and advertising.

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

LinkUp.com

LinkUp is a job search engine that searches jobs on company sites. The job postings are from small, mid-sized, and large company career sections, and are updated whenever the company web site is updated.

Us.jobs/index.asp

US.jobs lists thousands of jobs directly from company websites and from state job banks. The site is the non profit National Labor Exchange provided by DirectEmployers and The National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA).

Salary.com – A career portal offering a ton of information and tools for corporations and consumers. It provides a salary estimate wizard, calculators, educational material, training and certification advice, and business development center.

Net-Temps.com -- a site where job-seekers can search thousands of job listings or post your resume. Includes contract, temporary and permanent employment postings. Also includes career development articles, tools and resources. A top site. Free to job-seekers.

Jobing.com -- Jobing's mission is to connect local employers and local job seekers through Jobing.com, a local job board community; and Jobing Technology Services, a SaaS suite of technology apps for web, mobile, social media, search & video recruiting.

Us.jobs/index.asp -- Comprehensive state job search engine sponsored by the National Labor Exchange.

VetJobs.com -- a great site for veterans and transitioning military personnel and their family members. Job openings for all levels and types of jobs. You can search for jobs (by type, keyword, and location), as well as post your resume. Includes other key resources for vets. Sponsored by Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. Free to job-seekers.

Vault.com -- well-known for its insider reports on thousands of companies, this site has branched out into recruitment and has more than 150,000 job postings from about 27,000 employers, which job-seekers can search through multiple criteria (such as job categories, keywords, location, experience level, posting date). Job-seekers can also sign-up for an email job criteria matching service. Free to job-seekers.

USAJOBS.gov -- a one-stop source for job-seekers seeking information about jobs and employment with the United States Federal Government. Job-seekers can search for jobs (by keyword, location, and occupation), post your resume, and register for a job-matching email service. Also includes lots of other resources and tips for finding employment with the government. Free to job-seekers.

TwitterJobSearch.com -- a job search engine for Twitter, where job-seekers enter search keyword(s) and receive immediate results of tweets for job openings. No cost to job-seekers.

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

TweetMyJobs.com -- with 8,000+ vertical job channels segmented by geography, job type, and industry, this site is able to connect employers and recruiters with job-seekers instantly any time a new job is posted. Simple register to get instant notification of newly posted job opportunities and internships. No cost to job-seekers.

TopUSAJobs.com -- a job site that lists the top jobs from numerous "niche" industry and geographic-specific job boards. Job-seekers can search for job listings (by category, location, job title, and job detail keywords), or go directly to the individual job boards. Free to job-seekers.

thingamajob.com -- a free career site for all job seekers from the Allegis Group. Job searches, online resume posting, job alerts, and career tools, are a few of the many features available to job-seekers. You can search for jobs by job categories, keywords, location, and date the job was posted. Free to job-seekers.

Realmatch.com -- takes the job-seeker's qualifications and preferences and matches them with the employer's requirements. You can also search job listings by keyword and location. Free to job-seekers.

Nationjob.com -- NationJob Network -- an online job search service with thousands of current job listings and company profiles. Includes an email service that send you jobs that match your qualifications and interests.

myCareerSpace.com -- where job-seekers can search for jobs (by category, region, or keywords) and post up to five different resumes that you can then use to apply to job openings online. Also includes other job-seeker resources, such as career expos, relocation, insurance, and more. Free to job-seekers.

LocalHelpWanted.net -- lots of features and benefits to this job site where job-seekers can search for job listings by first narrowing choices by state and major city. You can also post your resume, audio resume, video resume, and portfolio items after registration. For an additional fee, you can obtain addition space to post even more information. No cost to job-seekers for basic services.

LatPro.com -- the worldwide leader in online employment for Hispanic and bilingual professionals, where job-seekers can search thousands of job listings from pre-screened employers, post multiple resume versions, create an email job agent, and access other career resources. Free to job-seekers.

Job-search-engine.com Juju -- an interesting resource -- one of the best, where job-seekers can search 15 different job sites (including CareerCity, CareerMosaic, HeadHunter.net, JobOptions, NationJob, and others) using keywords that describe your preferred job, as well as a preferred location. Free.

JobsINBOX.com -- an international job search engine and networking site, where job-seekers can find relevant job postings from around the world through a matching process based on key skills. You can also create communities of your work interest, offer/receive advice/info/help from others with the same interests. No cost to job-seekers.

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

Jobs.net

Jobs.NET -- job-seekers from all over the world can browse or search for jobs, post your confidential online resume, and receive job-hunting tips and advice. Job posting can be searched by just about any criteria, including keywords, location, recency of posting, salary, job title, industry, company size, and more. Free to job-seekers.

Jobs in Pods -- a Web 2.0 job site in which job-seekers can listen to employer "jobcasts" -- audio interviews from employer HR managers/employees that discuss corporate culture, benefits, etc. At the end of each podcast you're instructed on how and where to apply to the jobs you just heard about. Each podcast also comes with a blog post which lists all the relevant links and information about the employer and job listings. No cost to job-seekers.

Jobshouts.com-- a job search engine integrated with social media, helping to create connections and deliver better matching results for job seekers, which delivers real-time job postings and automated one click searching across multiple social networks simultaneously. No cost to job-seekers.

Jobsearchshortcut.com-- a great job-search site that provides links directly to more than 20,000 company career centers job listing Web pages in 41 metropolitan areas nationwide. Jobs are categorized both by city within each metro area as well as alphabetically -- and links send job-seekers directly to the employer. No cost to job-seekers.

Jobirn.com: Insider Referral Network -- a unique job site that is a combination of job board, online interview system, and employee referral system that connects job-seekers with employees inside the company where you would like to work -- to help get a referral to ideal job. No cost to job-seekers.

Jobfox.com -- a job-matching site for job-seekers, which uses its Mutual Suitability System -- an in-depth profile system used to learn about your experience, wants, and needs -- to then present you with only the opportunities (rated on a 5-star scale) that match your profile. (Employers participate in this same process.) No cost to job-seekers for basic services

JobCircle.com -- Mid-Atlantic's largest non-newspaper affiliated job board that provides careers, content and community to jobseekers -- operating in CT, DC, DE, OH, MD, NY, NJ, PA, VA and WV. Job-seekers can search or browse job listings, as well as post your resume. No cost to job-seekers.

jobalot.com -- a mega-meta job site, where job-seekers can use a simple job search interface (searching basically by keywords and location) to find thousands of the job listings from hundreds of the best job sites. You can also browse jobs by category, find career resources, or learn about continuing education opportunities. No cost to job-seekers.

Interviewexchange.com -- a new concept in job boards, where job-seekers who are interested in job listings are rated based on how closely you match the qualifications in the job posting. Job-seekers can also post your resume and receive e-mail job matching notification. Free to job-seekers.

JobShouts!
Creating connections one job @ a time

Job Search
Shortcut

Jobirn BETA

jobfox

Jobcircle

jobalot

Interview
Exchange

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

GOJobs.com -- a general job board where job-seekers can search job postings by keyword or browse by state or job function. You can also create an email job agent as well as find some career resources. Free to job-seekers.

GetTheJob.com -- a job search engine for direct employer jobs only, collecting job postings from the corporate career centers of thousands of companies, indexing more than 2 million jobs at any time. Job-seekers can search job postings, register for email alerts. No cost to job-seekers.

FreshJobs.com -- where all job postings are no older than one week. Job-seekers can search for jobs by location, skills, benefits, job type, or company as well as post your resume. You can also get a confidential mailbox and sign-up for a job matching service. Free to job-seekers.

FindARecruiter.com -- where job-seekers who are looking for a recruiting professional (headhunters, executive search, staffing firms) can search a database of more than 10,000 recruiters. Search by company name, specialty, or location. Free to job-seekers.

Employment911.com -- a "one-stop" job site, where job-seekers can search more than 350 major job sites with more than 3 million job openings and create an online resume that is posted to thousands of employers. Also includes some great career articles, tools, links, free email accounts, and much more. Free to job-seekers.

EmploymentGuide.com -- Great resources for job-seekers, where you can search for jobs, post your resume, and find career advice. One of the site's greatest resources is the development of localized job sites (a total of 56 metropolitan areas) so that job-seekers looking for employment in a specific geographic area can find the best job listings. Free to job-seekers.

DiversityWorking.com -- a great diversity job site for all ethnic and sexual orientation groups, where job-seekers can search for jobs (by location, industry, job listing type, posting recency, and keywords), as well as post your resume, and sign up for a free newsletter. The company is also a national career expo producer for the diversity marketplace. Free to job-seekers.

Collegerecruiter.com-- Jobs for college students, grads and recent graduates. Entry level work and career opportunities. Part-time and full-time. A great resource for job-seekers.

Career Park

CareerPark.com -- where job-seekers can search or browse job postings, as well as post your resume. Include links to other key career and job sites. Free to job-seekers.

Careercast.com -- a cool job portal offering job-seekers opportunities from all U.S. and Canadian newspaper, magazine, niche and TV station Websites powered by Adicio Inc., a developer of Web-based classified advertising solutions. Job-seekers can search job listings (by keyword, category, location), post a resume, find job news, more. No cost to job-seekers.

Comprehensive Internet Job Search List

BilingualCareer.com -- where bilingual job-seekers (English and at least one other language) can search job listings (by language, location, industry, keywords), post your resume, and find job interviewing and resume preparation advice. Free to job-seekers.

Aftercollege.com-- a job and internship site for college students and recent college grads. Post your resume or search for job openings (by job type, industry, type of work, location, and keyword). Also includes some basic career resources. Free to job-seekers.

Americasjobexchange.com -- The leading source for middle-income jobs.

Greencollarjobs.com - A job board for jobseekers and employers seeking environmentally friendly positions and green collar workers.

Careerguidetips.com --Find a perfect job that matches your skills. Great tips to create a professional resume, search for jobs, prepare for interviews, and launch your career.

Quintcareers.com -- Start your job-search at Quintessential Careers! QuintCareers.com has all the tools to empower you to succeed in your career, college, job-search.

Mycareerguide.com -- Career guides & job Search resources by MyCareerGuide.com. Features career guides and job search resources to guide you through your career.

Jobserve.com -- Job Seeker Services Discover how JobServe can help you find your next job, whether it be permanent or contract.